Up to 1,82,000 INR (2282 USD) p.a to support the Scale Development Project focusing on developing a reliable and valid measure of a construct in order to assess an attribute of interest.

Description: There is a lot of wisdom in Mythology. It is the stories that have travelled across time, space and cultures. We see and learn about the values, relationships and behaviours that have transcended or moved through those thousands of years of mythology and mythology stories.

Purpose: In some way, these stories hold our reality, and we could learn more about where it all started and what holds the truth today by studying the patterns and relationships of psychology through mythological characters and mythological stories.

Scope: Learning this comparative mythology to be focused on the mythology beyond your state and culture to understand relations, change values and behaviour and change the truth of psychology.

Projects Completed: Buddhism and Tetralemma in Mystical Collapse

Upcoming Projects: The Archetypes of Krishna, Jainism in Psychology
